Last night my wife Colleen and a few friends from Church went to the theater and saw a movie called ARTICLE VI.

It was a V.I.P. screening in Los Angeles and a few other cities of the feature-length documentary on Faith, Politics in America.

The 600 seat theater was about 2/3 full. Besides the FREE tickets, FREE pop corn and FREE soft drinks, this film begins with footage of myself preaching against the Mormon church in Salt Lake City and ends with us on a very positive note. It has a curve ball ending with the timing right for the 2008 elections.

Release Date is Sept 2008. See clip: <http://www.article6themovie.com:80/>

The last time I was on the big screen was a few years ago on another documentary regarding AIDS-HIV in Hollywood and the film showed us preaching at a sodomite parade in Hollywood and an AIDS walk in Los Angeles, coupled with an interview with me on the subject. My wife and I watched the big screen only to have the crowd boo me and tossed pop corn at the screen every time I was shown. This movie is called DAMAGED GOODS and has been on Showtime for two months (June-July) the past two years.

This is the Introductory trailer for a documentary regarding images from Iran as Petar and Ruben give an interview in Denver

Dracula 2000-was another big screen movie with a modern day Dracula hanging around New Orleans during Mardi Gras. The movie was not filmed on Bourbon Street but in a studio made up like Mardi Gras and guess what they had in the crowd shots? You guessed it OUR PREACH BANNERS. Click the site below and scroll down towards the end and you can see a Jesus saves from hell banner and a God hates sin banner in the crowd. I guess STREET PREACHING has gone Hollywood.

In the movie called 2012 you find a key scene where a street preacher in a wheel chair is holding up a sign that reads: REPENT THE END IS NEAR! And later in the movie the President says "who would have thought that those guys with the signs were right all along?"

I guess STREET PREACHING has gone Hollywood!

This is a documentary called "BEYOND GAY" with the theme politics of gay pride and in this trailer you will see Brother Ruben preaching at a sodomite parade in Las Vegas
